Chickenny 9. H. Boston. Nov. 16/77.

We To the Preficetor of Concorner Art Gallery,

100 1 - 9 6 Aor 19, Washing tim. D. Ce. Deur Lii, I have seen a copy of Thate -- grufh of Muller's picture of Encloses $1.25 for copy of Borday photo, Charlette Corday, in prison", Obtained at your gallery. Desirous of procuring a copy I anchore $1.25 for which please send me a copy by muil or express. I am told the muce of photograph is $1. If I have not sent enough for pricture? Jucking place in form me. Truly Bens, Geo. He. Chickering, 156 Frement St. Boston

Boston, Nov 20 1847 Alessis. Ho M. Mm. Mac Scoa, Deur Su; In refly to your favor I will request you to send me the Smaller size Phole of Charlotte Con - day, 12×16 m. Truly Duis Geo. Ho. Chickering

Troubridge & Jennings, 1192, Aubrin N. 4, Non 19.1877 Nov 21/77,

Order for Photograph,

ORCORAN GALLERY OF AFE

1192 YTROWBRIDGE & JENNINGS, Picture Frames, Wall Paper,
LOOKING GLASSES, &c.

A Chuburn, N. Y. Doy 1 9 1877 m or Machend Dear Lin Jours of the 15 theirs Reed for may send us The Thotographe at the leaves mentioned Inter Deserver each of the best subjects especially the 18xnn sige of Charlatee Ovorkory Jonia Restor Moringer Jenning Os De are Strangers to fore once Ocher for to copie of Without Heo 15/1 Bradray Que In Knoeder Hes 170 First live new York

Meh Mus: fart, 1193 New York, Vov 21. 1877 Nov 24/77

Achgreeps of Photos,

0

ORCORAN GALLERY OF 1822 WASHINGTON, D. C.

METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART,

Margni

No. 128 West Fourteenth Street.

NEW YORK, 21 of November 1877

The Trustees have received

A number of Thotographs

A Gift from

The Corcoran Fallery of Art.

for which they return a grateful acknowledgment.

President.

Secretary

University of Ver. 1194, Nov 24. 1877 Nov 26/77,

Achf respr of Otheris,

OMCORAN GALLERY OF TREE WASHINGTON. D. C.

University of Virginia, Chairman's Office, Fir; your note of the 19- mot has been received together with the Thotographo lo Kintly presented to this University by the Instees of the Corroran Galley ofth. The Faculty accepts with pleasure and thanks the Phatographs. James F. Harrison, Th. S., Chairman of the Faculty. F. S. Barbarin Evgr, Assit Curator to, Corwon Gallengogetet.) Moslington, D.C.

Dahlgreen
[Mus M. V.

Nov 25.1877.

Nov 26/77

Portrait of Marshall Soult by Dealy for sale,

ORCORAN GALLERY OF THE WASHINGTON, D. C.

Manit we have togeth

of wee may reastering

Mary loon before Inflying

he the possession of the Sallery. Key portrait of Marshall Soult was painted by Healy at Faris, where Soult Sauce live the Littings in 1838, and leas alevays been lousidered by Weal artist lunself & believe, ax oue of his most Creditable works ofart. lau my Dear Sin Hadeleine binton Dallgreen 23 49 Ls Y Corner 14 th Washington the atom of the house as

Maria Come Come Theory of the one of the

heith the state of releation

Bolis 9.

Pa acad of J. A.

Ohula Nov 27. 1877

Nov 28/77

ack suprof Photos.

0

DACORAN GALLERY OF THE WASHINGTON, D. C.

1196 Philadelphia, Arr. 27, 1877 Mr. Me Lead, Esq. Curator Corcoran Gallery of art. Dear Sir, I have delayed Onswering your last note, in con-Sequence of having lost Sight of it and mislaid it, under the pressure of Some very important matters requiring immediate attention at The time of its receipt. I have given up the hope of finding it; and must answer from memory. I remember that it enclosed a 25 ¢ note and two three Cent Stamps to refund expres-Jage paid by us on photographs forwarded from your galley. This I hereby acknowledge; thought of regret that you should have troubled spurself with the matter, for we certainly could not grants at that tripling expense in Connection with so desirable are acquisition to the acadlungs Calle It in of Scholographs. The afores aid photographs have been peceived in good Con-Dition. Please tell Mr. Bar barine, whole letter amounced their coming, that a formal answer will be returned after the next meeting of the Goard. Meanwhile, accept in advance, on the part of the Academy, my Sincere thanks for the generous Cewad from the George Gallery yours touly The dissactuary Rec' (pri Mr. McLeod: Vassan College. Mr. McLeod: Nov. 28. 1877. your address as that of the froper person to whom to apply for copies of an Engraving called the "Vistal Vingue " The Rige desired is about fifteen or eighten who by right on tew. (15 x 8 or 18 × 10); although I may be mistaken as I can only guess The dimensions. Will you please inform you have them and also the frice? Respectfully, Harrich Raudou.

Ranson Harrier. Vassar bollege Son 28/77 Nov 30/77 Hith regard to engranny

Presstad A New York. Nov 29 /77. Dec 3/17 Will be in Washington shortly & hing Negative of Corday, Mile probably pack his picture, 15750

Williams
Moiss M.E.

Salem Mass
Octi 3. 1877

Encloses tracing of Portrait of Dante by Raphael,

V

CORCORAN GALLERY OF THE CORCORANGE WASHINGTON, D. C.

was sold, though only about Leven inches square, brought over sifty thous and dollars, though it had a crack from the top into the middle of it. It was bought by the Empress of Russia. Mm. Moore has had an offer from Earl Cowper, owner of the celebrated collection at Panshanger, Herts, one of his seats, for the Upollo and Marsyas"; and also an offer in May 1875 of three hundred thousand francs for it, from the Grand Duke Nicholas of Leuchtemberg, eldest son of the late grand Ducheps Maria of Kuddia, own sister to the Emperor. The will not however accept less than his own price, five hundred thou Sand frances ($160.000) It is also in perfect condition. I do not quite remember whether I acknowledged the receipt of the photographs; as I was much occupied so If not please accept my apologies. I have heard from them several thines from friends who have seen thewin the gallery; I wish we could hear they were to be there permanently -Ever Lincolly yours May E. Williams

Asgood Farm, 1200 Salem, Maps. Och. 3?/77

Mr. McLeod, Dearsir, Jour friend Mr. Wilson is making a Shortvisit in Salem, and as he is soon to return to Washington, it Leems to me an excellent opportunity to Lend you a Short-description, which was lately sent to me, of Raphael's beautiful, most interesting and valuable Portrait of Dante of which I spoke to you when I Saw you in your Sanctum, and which I so much wished you would buy for your beautiful Gallery. It is a treasure which might well claim the place of honor there on account of its artistic perfection; besides being the first-Raphael in America.

It is fit too that it should be in our Capital City; much as I should like it here.

you remember, perhaps, that I said I had a tracing from the original, which I regretted not having brought with me; I send by our mutual friend a tracing which I have made from that one, which I hope you will accept as I feel due you will appreciate the exquisite delicacy and refine. ment of the features, and the extreme sensitiveness of the face. you know that Raphael took his authority for the likewess from the one painted by his (Dante's) friend Grotto, in the room in the old Bargello, once the Chapel of the Palazzo del Podesta, before it was whitewashed over, and had the right eye broken out with a nail; and therefore it is the most important likewess of the great och which now exists. The position of this is precisely like that, only reversed.

Will you be kind enough to show the tracing to the Committee, and See if they cannot be persuaded to purchase it; or rather, it seems to me I ought to write, see if they will not be anxious to Lecure it! I am dure they would if they could see the picture itself, for the painting is faultless (as are all of Raphael's works I and it is in a perfect state Thousand dollars, could not seeme. a richer treasure.

I am afraid this, as well as the famous "Apollo and Marsyas" which Mm. Moore also owns and for which he asks with reason a hundred throusand dollars, will be lost to us if we delay much longer, as they are getting such a world wide reputation, and it is almost impossible to find a Raphad which can be bought at any price. You know the little "Madouna Coues tabile" the last of his works which

THE PORTRAIT OF DANTE BY RAPHAEL

(In the possession of Mr Morris Moore, in Rome).

THE PORTRAIT OF DANTE BY RAPHAEL, painted, as there is fair ground to conjecture, for his friend Cardinal Bembo, author of the famous distich for the sovereign Painter's Tomb in the Pantheon, (1) is in Raphael's "Florentine manner," not without reason by many preferred as the most purely and most emphatically "Raphaelesque." Of this "manner" are the Entombment in the Borghese gallery, the Madonna del Cardellino in the "Tribuna" at Florence, the Madonna of the Belvedere gallery at Vienna, and other among the most celebrated works of the Italian Apelles, as, for instance, his Apollo and Marsyas. (2)

Like all Raphael's paintings, that are incontestable, only one excepted, namely, the Madonna di S. Sisto at Dresden, and, of course, his frescoes, Raphael's Portrait of Dante is on panel. The panel is 17²/₃ inches high; 12⁴/₉ wide.

All but in profile and turned to the right, the features are manifestly borrowed from the sole authentic effigy of the Poet extant, the one (also in profile, but turned to the left) painted in fresco by his friend Giotto, in the Chapel of the Palazzo del Podestà (now Museo Nazionale), at Florence; the only contemporary one representing him in the prime of manhood, — "nel mezzo del cammin di nostra vita," as sung in the first line of the Divine Comedy.

Melancholy and thoughtful — "malinconico e pensoso" the countenance (as described by Boccaccio, Dante's great votary and Biographer), deep on the brow are already graved the traditional furrows, and salient on the temple rise the veins, signs visible of fathomless musings.

(1) Ille hic est Raphael timuit quo sospite vinci Rerum Magna Parens et moriente mori. Questi è quel Raffael che vivo, vinta Esser credea Natura, e morto, estinta.

(2) In the possession of Mr Morris Moore.

The cap, in hue dark purple, is enwreathed with Apollo's bays, undying record of sweet Paphne; whereas, the Portrait by Giotto is uncrowned. Beneath the purple cap is one of white linen, through the one seen lappet of which, exquisitely peer the graceful contours of the ear.

The doublet, twice fastened with green bows, to match and thus balance (as, by analogy, with the harmonies in Music) the color of the bays above, is red; this complementing the green, its optical antagonist.

At its foot, the picture is terminated by a sill, an inch and $^3/_4$ high, representing variegated wood-work, as in a very precious picture in the Salon Carré of the Louvre. Upon this sill, and real as the curtain which duped Zeuxis, is depicted a scrap of white paper, 3 inches by $1^3/_4$, once sextuply folded, but now horizontally displayed. It could have served for a monogram, or a larger inscription, say, a distich from Dante himself, but no trace is there of any. Its main object was pictorial, and this was accomplished by its balancing the white of the lappet, as the green bows of the doublet balance the bays.

The background is of a warm blackish uniform tint, the very counterpart of the background to the Madonna del Granduca, by Raphael, in the Pitti Gallery at Florence.

Nothing can exceed the scientific distribution and balance of tones in this work. Its harmony is surpassing.

Besides its necessary superiority, as a work of Art, incident to the Master and to Art's achieved maturity, the Portrait by Raphael possesses a further matchless advantage over its Prototype; namely, its having been inspired by the latter, when as yet unmangled by vandalism and undefiled by "restoration."

On reflecting that here is portrayed, by ITALY'S SOVEREIGN LIMNER, the effigy of ITALY'S IMPERIAL HOMERIC BARD — the effigy of Him whose name is a very synonym for Italy's, the likeness morally and materially vouched by authority above all question, one cannot with-hold conviction that such a work may well claim to be WITHOUT RIVAL.